Alexandre Caget

Alexandre Caget graduated from Paris Law University after studying politics at the Institut d'Etudes Politiques de Bordeaux.

He started his career as personal and commercial lines underwriter for a mutual insurer before joining the Paris office of the Lloyd's Agent, McLarens Young, where he gained experience as loss adjuster and marine surveyor and obtained the Lloyd's C.C.S.P. certificate.

After having worked for surveying companies as cargo and property surveyor, claim consultant or senior loss adjuster, he started his own business as public loss assessor and claim adviser in 2009.

He is the general secretary of the UDEA, a union representing French public loss assessors.

As member of the IRSG, he is willing to work with experienced professionals from various backgrounds so as to discuss crucial issues with vigilance in order to enhance reputation and trust of the European insurance market.
