

EIOPA Insurance and Reinsurance Stakeholder Group

Typhaine Beaupérin

Typhaine leads the Federation of European Risk Management Associations (FERMA), bringing together 22 member associations in 21 European countries representing over 4800 risk and insurance managers.

Typhaine has a solid experience in Brussels in the institutional field of the European Union having worked for ten years as a public affairs practitioner for EUROCHAMBRES, the Association of European Chambers of Commerce and Industry.

She is currently pursuing an Executive Master degree in International Association Management at the Solvay Brussels School and holds a dual degree (French and English) in international business and a Masters in European Public Affairs.

With her knowledge, experience and international network, Typhaine's focus will be on sharing the views of the corporate clients in order to support the insurance industry in addressing the challenges and seizing the opportunities arising from the accelerating evolution in the way business is conducted driven notably by the digitalization.

As representative of the voice of the European corporate insurance clients and users of captive insurance, Typhaine will bring a unique added-value to the work at the IRSG group as regards cyber risks, the review of Solvency II or natural disaster insurance and potential other topics, having in mind the duty to ensure the best possible access for EU industries to insurance solutions in order to protect their assets and be competitive globally in their operations.